Art Unit: 3635

Applicant elected group I claims 1-8 drawn to the floor apparatus. Claims 9-21 have been withdrawn as being drawn to the non-elected group II.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-4 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Abendroth et al (4910936). Abendroth discloses a floor apparatus comprising:

1. a rigid layer 13/21; the rigid board is fibrous; Abendroth discloses various materials for the rigid layer such as plywood and solid wooden boards; one of ordinary skill in the art would have selected any wooden material providing the intended function and purpose of the floor apparatus
2. a hardwood layer 16, includes a plurality of hardwood planks, secured to the first or top side of the rigid board
3. a non-slip pad 12 secured to the second or bottom side of the rigid board; the second side of the rigid board geometrically opposing the first side of the rigid board
4. the pad 12 is a laminated pad; see element 15

Abendroth does not state that his pad characterized by a substantially high coefficient of friction. First, the term “substantially high coefficient of friction” is relative in description.

Art Unit: 3635

What is or has been considered "relatively". Second, the pad of Abendroth may be considered as non-slip in that it requires no external fasteners to secure in place. Third, one of ordinary skill in the art would have appreciated employing any pad which would provide for the intended purpose and function of the floor apparatus.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 5 and 7-8 (is/are) rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over by Abendroth . Abendroth secures the hardwood layer to the rigid board by nails. But employing glue or adhesive to secure the layers together is known as evidence by column 4, lines 10-15. Abendroth desires the free floating relation of the pad and the rigid layer suggesting the alternative is known to exist using adhesives. It would have been obvious to employ adhesive to alternatively secure the rigid layer to the hardwood layer suggesting a strong, continuous and alternative attachment over nails.
